Vibrato exercise no. 1: Play each of these long notes and articulate each quaver with a 'ha' feel rather than a tongue.

Vibrato exercise no. 2: Play G major scale (or your favourite scale) with the same articulation as the previous exercise.

Vibrato exercise no. 5: This exercise practices moving from slow vibrato to fast vibrato and back to slow on each note.

Copyright © 2010 R Found

Vibrato exercise no. 6: Play the following long notes not with a cresc/decresc, but with an increasing and decreasing intensity of diaphragm pulse, i.e. small 'ha' increasing to big 'ha', then decreasing again.

Vibrato study: From 125 Easy Classical Studies. Remember not to use vibrato on every note, but decide which ones are important or require extra 'colour'. These notes include long notes, the first beat of a bar or the high point of a phrase. Circle the notes you think would benefit from vibrato and experiment with the kind of vibrato which might be appropriate (fast/slow, intense/subtle, etc).

Copyright © 2010 R Found

р